

IRA — WHEN WILL MAJOR ACT?

FIRST there was Canary Wharf, then there was Manchester and the latest is the mortar bomb attack on an army barracks in Germany. The peace process is well and truly dead. It is dead since the IRA/Sinn Fein was such a crucial part of it. The SDLP may speak for republicans, but they don't speak for the IRA. Nor seemingly at the moment does Sinn Fein. The picture is clear, the IRA is in business to kill and kill again in support of its aims. There can only be one response from the government and that is to take the terrorists out of circulation by one means or another. It wouldn't even be very hard. The security services we are told know who the terrorists are. Internment is an option. For the government, it is possibly the strongest option possible. It should be used.

The origins of the present campaign are well known. The IRA have always been single minded. They want a united socialist Ireland ruled from Dublin. Because of the lack of popular support for them in Northern Ireland they have resorted for nearly 30 years to the bomb and the bullet.

When they declared a cease-fire at the end of 1994, it was because they believed that they could get their own way by negotiation. For the IRA, the cease-fire was simply a tactic. In the pre talk 'negotiations' the British government made one concession after another. Soldiers deployed on the street in support of the police were returned to barracks, troop levels were reduced, IRA prisoners were released, the ban on reporting IRA spokesmen was lifted, Sinn Fein/IRA were to sit at the negotiating table if the IRA handed in its arms. In return, the IRA made no concessions whatsoever and was adamant that it was not going to hand over its arms to anyone whether it be the British or Irish governments or the United Nations.

The spokesmen for Sinn Fein were quietly confident that the British government was looking for a way out of Northern Ireland and all they need do was go along with the government which they confidently expected to hand over Ulster as soon as decently possible. They had good cause for their expectations. The concessions made by Britain merely confirmed them. It must have been the worst possible luck for Sinn Fein/IRA that just when they thought they might get their own way, John Major's government became beset with difficulties from within his own party and had to increasingly rely on Unionist support in Parliament to soldier on. The Unionists extracted a price for their support — insistence on the IRA decommissioning its arms. The talks bogged down.

IRA frustration at the end of last year led them to place their units, which had never ceased training, back on alert to practice bombing drills. The culmination was the massive Canary wharf docklands bombing back in February, which killed two and wrought massive damage. Even then, there were still fools who talked of peace. The cowardly British government announced that if only the IRA reinstated its cease-fire, Sinn Fein could sit at the table for formal talks. Decommissioning would be fudged. The IRA had bombed its way to the table, it was there for the taking. There has been a widespread hope that the IRA sympathisers as able to deliver a peace. They were wrong.

The terrorists answer was the massive Manchester lorry bomb which injured over 200 people on a busy Saturday afternoon during the Euro 96 football tournament. More recently, the IRA signalled its determination to press its attacks with the mortar bombing of a British army base in Germany. No doubt the politicians will try to keep the farcical 'peace process' going. But there really is only one answer. The government has to declare war on the IRA. It is not true that the war cannot be won. It can — but the rules have to be changed. Internment is a realistic option, another option is 'shoot to kill'. That after all is what the IRA has been practising for nearly 30 years. A BNP government would stop the terror. What will John Major do?

DUAL 'REALITY'

The story on page three outlines the prevalence of racial attacks directed at whites. Some, particularly middle-class liberals might well be surprised. For them it is a tenet of faith that only whites can ever be the perpetrators of a racial attack. It is this surprise itself which is revealing since common sense always suggested that if you put large numbers of diverse peoples together cheek by jowl, there would be friction. The result is that the mental processes of liberals have to be regarded as faulty on every subject. What is worrying is that 'liberals' whether in the Tory or Labour parties or even in Whitehall represent our leaders who are supposed to make decisions on our behalf. Why have they got it so wrong? The growing phenomenon of race-hate crimes directed at white people was after all an inevitability. One only had to look abroad to the Indian subcontinent, to America, to the old Yugoslavia or even to the Russian Federation to see how different ethnic groups react and behave towards each other. Inter-racial violence is not an oddity, it is the norm. Furthermore, in many respects it is entirely natural since racial groups perceive themselves as defending territory, space and group interests. It is nature's immutable law and the group which fails to recognise it will be out manoeuvred and go to the wall. At present, that group is looking very much like the majority white population. The only advantage that white people possess is intelligence and numbers. A powerful combination to be sure but not of much use without cohesion and common sense.

That is precisely the trouble with our leaders and the chattering classes who so fervently back them: no common sense (from common sense all else follows). They rely on the faith of their liberal doctrine and it is flawed. Not long ago, these people would insist that only non-whites could be discriminated against. Only continual publicity of the reverse also being the case has made them grudgingly acknowledge what is plain to every man and woman in the country. Yet were they to ignore or deny the obvious in a work related situation, they would be sacked as incompetent. But the liberal has a dual reality. The reality of work and economic self interest in which, because of his education, he does well and the 'reality' of society, which isn't so much how society is, as how he would like society to be. That is the source of his duality which brings misery and real suffering to ordinary British people who have to live with the consequences of his folly.

The solution is of course, to sweep this political class away from power and replace it with different people. People who know what it's like to live in modern Britain. Not from the cosy distance of Hampstead or Twickenham but up close where people have real problems that require an answer.

EVIL MONSTERS

Following on from our front page story last month spelling out why it is that the BNP supports capital punishment for child murderers, and which featured the child molestation and murder of little Daniel Handley, comes news of several other cases. A thirteen-year-old boy was sexually attacked over one-hundred times over a four year period by sex pervert, John Meach. The boy has since twice tried to commit suicide. In court, Meach was gaoled by the judge, after hearing that he still has sexual fantasies about young boys, for just four years. Four years for over one-hundred sex attacks!

The boy's mother is understandably absolutely furious. She said: "The sentence was far too lenient. People who abuse children should be castrated or put down."

● Sex monster, Sydney Cooke who led a child sex ring which abducted, raped and murdered young boys is to be released from prison. Evil Cooke led a ring which police suspect kidnapped, tortured, sexually abused and murdered dozens of youngsters but which was found guilty only of murdering Jason Swift. Jason was abducted in 1985, taken to a flat, drugged and abused by five sex-beasts where he died pleading for mercy.

Sentenced for 16 years, Cooke could well be released this November on parole. Even if he doesn't get parole, Cooke will be released next year in any case after serving the statutory two-thirds of his sentence. Cooke wants to return to the Kingsmead estate in Hackney where his gang assaulted and killed Jason eleven years ago. Local residents say the trial is still fresh in people's minds and that he will be killed if he returns. Detective Superintendent Stoodley believes Cooke will kill again if released.

● BN is often critical of the disproportionate amount of crime committed by ethnic minorities, much of it violent. This is only right. There has been a deliberate attempt to cover up both the scale and the impact of immigration into Britain and the social consequences resulting. It amounts to censorship and suppression of free speech. Nevertheless, it is only fair to also criticise and remark on the racial nature of other crimes in which whites are predominant. Sex crimes against children often followed by their murder must count as the most depraved and totally evil crime there is. It is a crime committed almost exclusively by whites. Why this should be we do not pretend to know. We do, however, have the remedy — the rope for murderers (that would have been the end of Sidney Cooke under a BNP government) and castration for repeat rape offenders along with a lengthy prison sentence, which would have the advantage of preventing repeat attacks following release, unlike various liberal 'therapy' treatments which just seem to fuel further attacks.

AFRO-CARIBBEANS FAIL TO IDENTIFY WITH NATIONAL TEAM, ADMITS NEWSPAPER

MANY 'Black Britons' cheered for Germany and Holland in Euro '96 matches against England, a survey last month established. The survey was carried out by The Voice, the country's biggest selling newspaper for the black community.

Jean Simpson, a black reporter, told how in one mainly black pub in South London, Germany's victory by penalties against England was greeted with "unadulterated glee."

According to the survey, some Blacks supported teams with the largest contingents of black players, like Holland and France. One moan among Blacks in Britain was that there were not enough black players in the England team. These people appear to think that their co-racialists should be chosen on a quota basis (one in four among league footballers) rather than on merit.

These findings are indeed a smack in the eye for multi-racialists, who seem to think that Blacks in this country are 'British'. By their own admission, it looks like most of them just don't want to be!

BNP GENERAL ELECTION FEATURE

When the British National Party contests the next General Election whether it be in the Autumn or next Spring, the party will field over 50 candidates and qualify for TV broadcasting time. At the same time, the party will have distributed, courtesy of the Post Office, some two-million leaflets going into two-million homes.

For the BNP, this will be a massive recruitment exercise and also a mass exercise in fighting elections. Some time after the next General Election when the public finally sees through Labour (who BN believes will win), there will be enormous opportunities for the BNP. Having done our recruiting in this election and having trained branch organisers right across the country in the necessities of fighting elections, the party will be well placed to take advantage of any opportunity which presents itself.

In the first of a series of features on the next election, we focus on the candidates and the constituencies which the BNP will be contesting. This month, we present Bill Binding who will be fighting Dagenham. Dagenham was the place where just two years ago, John Tyndall saved the party's first ever deposit and gained 7 percent of the vote. Bill is very positive about the party's prospects in Dagenham and hopes to consolidate the work that has already been done there. Dagenham is a very large council housing estate, mostly white and working class and is excellent territory for the BNP.

ONE-HUNDRED YEARS AGO, ONE-HUNDRED YEARS ON

Just imagine if time travel was possible. Just imagine if somebody were to travel from 1996 to 1896. Just imagine if somebody were to describe what Britain would be like to somebody living then: Britain will have fought two world wars; we will have lost our Empire as a consequence; there will be massive non-white immigration into Britain; there will be white women giving birth to non-white offspring and this will be widespread throughout the country; there will be little left of our military, our Royal Navy; Britain will be ruled from Brussels not London; British industry will have been decimated and the country overrun by foreign imports; the invention of the television, a kind of cinema in your own living room for entertainment purposes, will spew moral corruption and decadence into every home; children will be murdered and sexually abused before death; crimes against the elderly will rocket, our old folk will be savagely attacked both on the streets and in their own homes and in some cases brutally murdered.

Now if someone had said all this one-hundred years ago, that person would have been put into an asylum for the mentally insane. But this is the reality of Britain today. Just who is it that is insane?

RACIAL ATTACKS ON WHITES — A GROWING TREND

The increase in racial attacks on whites including murder continues with no let up. In some towns there is seemingly a policy of ethnic cleansing whereby immigrants are attacking whites to encourage them to move out so as to leave totally non-white areas.

An indication of the strength that immigrants now feel they have can be found in their own violence against each other. Clearly they must feel confident about their prospects for 'taking over' if they can spare time and effort attacking their own.

East London is one area where Asian infighting continues. The father of Shahin Choudhury spoke out after his son's brutal murder outside the Blind Beggar pub in Whitechapel and the change in attitudes detailed by Mr. Choudhury's statement is most revealing: "Our community should help uphold the law in this country. I came here in 1968 when I was thirteen-years-old. Now I am forty-three. I have never been in trouble with the police. We had no need for violence. Now everything has changed. Young boys of 15 of 16 carry knives out with them in the street. In Chicksand street children sit and smoke drugs. If parents cannot manage their own children, they should go to the law."

MOB IN RACE HATE ATTACK

Also, in Tower Hamlets, a thirteen-year-old boy threw himself on top of his dad to shield him from a race-hate attack by a mob of thirty club-wielding Asians in Poplar. The boy and his 16-year-old cousin were playing in a park when a gang of Asians turned up and punched his cousin to the floor. The boys told the father who went out to see what had happened. He was immediately surrounded and beaten unconscious with iron bars and sticks by 30 Asians screaming anti-white racial abuse. It was then that his son bravely threw himself on top of his dad to shield him from further attack. The Commission for Racial Equality, the Anti Racist Alliance and the immigrant-fawning political establishment have yet to condemn the attack. No documentaries are being planned, no questions in the house of Parliament are to be tabled and no demonstrations by rent-a-mob are being organised against it. The reason of course is that the victim of this race hate attack is white and for them, whites don't count.

● In nearby Bromley-by-Bow, fighting took place between 10 white boys and thirty Asians. The police managed to arrest one of the white boys.

RACE BATTLE IN YORKSHIRE

Tending to the injured

Racial violence erupted at a football match in West Yorkshire between fans and players of opposing teams. A local cup final was being staged at Liversedge AFC football ground between Savile Town, an Asian team from Dewsbury and Hightown, a white team from Cleckheaton. With Hightown leading five goals to nil, trouble started in the 76th minute when Savile Town's Asian supporters started singing "We're taking over," before rushing onto the pitch to attack Hightown players and supporters. Bricks and bottles rained onto the pitch where one supporter lay unconscious, other supporters had teeth knocked out and sustained missile injuries. The Hightown supporters although outnumbered 3-to-1 were seen to get much the better of the fighting, which continued for half an hour until the arrival of police reinforcements.

ETHNIC CLEANSING IN PETERBOROUGH

In Peterborough, ongoing racial attacks against whites continue as they do in Halifax with an almost identical pattern appearing: sporadic unprovoked attacks on white people by Asians purely motivated by anti-white race hate.

Peterborough's Evening Telegraph headlined the latest attack 'Terror attack on city youngsters.' A gang of twenty Pakistanis attacked two children aged twelve and eight. Little David Haywood was attacked with cricket bats and sticks by the vicious Asian gang who shouted racial abuse at them. Leatitia Chambers aged eight was also hit with a cricket bat when she tried to help him.

In another cowardly attack, it took no less than forty Asians to attack

fifteen-year-old epileptic, Ronnie Davey. Whipping him with belts, the gang of Asians chased him through a housing estate before the boy reached the safety of a strangers home, banging on the door and collapsing unconscious in the hallway. A witness said: "It was disgusting — there were at least 40 of them, they were well organised. They were hitting him on the head with belts and splitting his head open."

Ronnie's mother said he had been chased by the gangs before — once with a knife. She said: "I'm so glad the woman opened her door because they would probably have kicked him to death."

● Racial violence and religious disputes are a feature of life in Peterborough enriching the area with its multi-cultural diversity just as it does in the third world. One Asian man had just left the town mosque and was sitting in his car chatting to friends when two cars pulled up and fifteen Asians jumped out armed with bricks, wooden stakes, clubs, cricket bats and a monkey wrench. The fifteen-strong gang beat the man senseless, smashing his skull with the weapons leaving him seriously ill in hospital.

MOSLEM FESTIVITIES END IN RACIAL ATTACKS

In Tamworth, 150 Asians from Birmingham rampaged through a fun fair damaging rides, stoning cars and fighting. The Asians who were 'celebrating' Eid surrounded a car and rocked and kicked it while terrified children inside screamed in fear. One man even managed to jump up and down on the car. All because the family inside the car were white. The car had its exhaust pipe ripped off and was stoned, shattering the back window and showering a little girl with broken glass before the father was able to drive to safety. After-wards the girl's father said: "It was the most terrifying moment of our lives. And I am sure that if I had got out of the car, I would have been killed."

At around the same time in Manchester, Asian gangs attacked whites going to a pop concert to watch Oasis. 'Religious revellers' celebrating Eid tried to storm the turnstiles of the concert two nights in a row. On both occasions, Asians attacked Oasis fans, mainly young teenagers and mostly young girls. One eyewitness who watched the escalating violence from a bedroom window said: "It appeared that they were just going for anybody who had a white face. We saw one young man set on right opposite our house. They punched and kicked him to the floor then somebody stood on his head. They were also kicking cars and smashing windows." A young woman who pleaded with the Asians to get out of her front garden was punched in the face. The second night of rioting saw Oasis fans left, without police protection outside the concert stadium, to the mercy of rioters who beat and robbed them. Oasis fans queueing to get in were bombarded with bottles before being attacked and robbed.

While Asian attacks of this sort are to be deplored, they may serve a useful purpose if, in the end, it wakes up Britain's sleepy whites to the racial realities of our times.

RACE MURDER UPDATE

Readers will remember white race-murder victim, Danny Westmacott, murdered by a gang of blacks in February solely because he was white. The killer is still at large despite the efforts of the police.

Only hours after the funeral which only took place last month, the killer was spotted in a nearby fun fair. A gang of Danny's friends went across to the fair and a fight broke out at which time one of the blacks present pulled out a knife and said: "I killed Danny and now I'm going to kill you." A white teenager was then stabbed in the shoulder.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT TO BRITISH NATIONALIST SUBSCRIBERS

Last month we began to get reports from our subscribers that they had been circularised with literature from a new political organisation and invited to apply to join. The organisation called itself the 'British National Socialist Party'. At the centre of its logo is an eagle (a foreign symbol). Its manifesto is illiterate, being full of spelling and grammatical errors. As an indication of how seriously its writers have addressed themselves to British political issues, it makes no mention of the Common Market; it advocates a 'free market' economy; and it ignores the issue of capital punishment.

But of much more interest than the contents of this literature is the question of how the senders managed to acquire the names and addresses of British Nationalist subscribers for the purpose of the circularisation.

An investigation of this matter has established clearly what happened. Prior to the Summer of 1995, addressing operations for the mailing of BN to subscribers were undertaken by Mr. Alf Waite, at that time, the head of BNP administration, and in possession of the BN subscription list. Many members will recall that last year a gang of masked criminals carried out a raid on Mr. Waite's home. The raiders forced their way into the house when he was absent and attacked his wife, who is registered as a semi-invalid, causing her minor injuries and considerable shock. While Mrs. Waite was being held on the ground by one of the raiders, the others ransacked the house and stole some computers that they found.

Very shortly after the raid, and at a time when very few people would have known about it, leading personnel of the group known as 'Combat 18' were telephoning people all over the country gleefully informing them of it in an obvious endeavour to exploit the incident to spread demoralisation among BNP members — an endeavour in which they had only tiny success.

SECURITY PRECAUTIONS

Some time previously, the Chairman of the BNP John Tyndall had discussed with Mr. Waite security precautions aimed at insuring that, should such a raid ever occur, these records would not get into the hands of the raiders. It was agreed that all membership and other lists should be deleted from the hard drive of the computer after each working session and kept on floppy disk at a secret location. Mr. Waite gave his assurance that this would be done. After the raid last year had occurred, Mr. Waite assured us that this operation had been carried out and that no records would have been left on the hard drive of the computer. It was on the strength of this assurance that the party made an announcement to this effect.

We were advised confidentially, however, by several members that the mere deletion of records from the hard drive in the normal manner may not be sufficient to ensure that they could not be recovered with the help of a professional expert. It will be appreciated that we felt it prudent not to make any statement concerning this at the time, as that could have been taken by those who had stolen the computers as a signal to attempt to retrieve the records by just such methods.

At the same time, sweeping new precautions were taken against such an event in the future. Mr. Waite resigned as head of administration and his resignation was accepted. The whole of the party's administrative machinery, as well as the administration of British Nationalist, was reorganised with a view to much tighter security, particularly in respect of membership and subscribers' lists. Also, we obtained and installed new computer software to provide strong RSA encryption facilities as well as facility for records to be erased totally after use making it impossible for them to be retrieved even by the most expert hand. This operation is now performed as a strict rule after all sessions in which any computer membership lists are used, with the floppy disks containing the records encrypted and kept in a place where they could not possibly be found. One price that we have to pay for the new system is that the process of dealing with membership renewals and the enlistment of new members is slower than we would wish, but we think that everyone will accept this in the interests of maximum security.

COPY OF STOLEN LISTS

That the circularisation list used by the new group calling itself the 'British National Socialist Party' has been copied from BNP subscribers' lists stolen from the home of Mr. Waite is confirmed by the fact that: (1) the names on the address labels are exactly as in the original BNP lists, character for character; and (2) people who have joined the BNP/taken out subscription to BN subsequent to the raid have not been circularised.

The party is at the present time carrying out a thorough investigation into the identity of those behind the so-called 'British National Socialist Party', and further information will be given as it comes in. The group operates from a PO box in Bungay, Suffolk. The introductory letter sent out with its manifesto is signed by someone calling himself 'Alexander Voltaire'. We now know vaguely who this person is, and while the name he uses is almost certainly fictitious, he is known as a cranky weirdo with a penchant for dressing up in uniforms. We are investigating the possibility that the BNSP is another 'front' for Combat 18 and that those involved in it are essentially the same people; we will have further news on this in due course. Possibly, this new name has been adopted as a result of Combat 18's other 'front', the 'National Socialist Alliance', failing to make much impact. This possibility is made more likely by news that comes to us that subscribers to the music organisation Blood & Honour, who have no connection with the BNP or with our periodicals, have also been circularised. The B&H organisation is currently wholly controlled by C18.

An acquaintance of ours telephoned the number given by the BNSP in its mail-out. After hearing a series of recorded messages, he eventually was answered by a person owning up to the name of 'Athena'. Our investigations have established that this 'Athena' is in fact Athena McHugh, who began life as a man (Tony McHugh) and later underwent a sex change. It was this circumstance that led to the termination of this person's membership of the British National Party in May last year. It is also quite possible that 'Alexander Voltaire' and 'Athena' McHugh are, in fact, one and the same person.

ATTEMPTED WRECKING OPERATION

It is quite obvious that the BNSP will never amount to a serious political organisation capable of making any impact on British politics. Every attempt to build a nationalist political movement in Britain by use of the nomenclature and symbolism of Hitler's Germany has failed lamentably, and there is no reason to believe that the BNSP will be an exception. However, it is much more probable that this group has been set up, not with the intention that it will become a force in British politics, but solely as a manoeuvre aimed at disrupting and embarrassing the British National Party in the run-up to the next General Election. It is important that supporters of the party, and subscribers to its supporting publications, should understand this and see the BNSP for what it is. In the introductory letter sent out by 'Mr. Voltaire' there is the glib declaration that "we have not formed this party to belittle the work being done by other national parties or groups," and that "there is no reason why our party and any other national parties or groups cannot work together..." This really is rich. Quite clearly, the use by this new 'party' of a membership list stolen from the BNP, together with the manner in which it was stolen, indicates an attitude of implacable hostility towards our party and an intention to damage it as much as possible.

'HE/SHE/IT' WANTS YOU FOR A NEW RECRUIT!

We conclude this report by saying that our enquiries so far have established that not one single BNP member has been taken in by this self-styled new 'party' and that defections to it are zero. The main reaction of those receiving this BNSP mail-out is one of anger at the fact that their names and addresses were obtained and at the manner in which they were maintained. This anger is entirely understandable.

It is important to stress that the raid on Mr. Waite's home occurred last year and that since this security breakdown, new measures put in place will ensure that there is no repetition of what happened then.

In the meantime this use of stolen lists is being reported to the police with a view to criminal proceedings.

Although Dr Maurice Bradley (Letters, June 10) may think that "the word 'race' implies a history of homogeneous and fundamentally separate 'races', that underpins beliefs in racial superiority," this is not how the word is used by biologists. For them races, as opposed to sub-species, are recognisably different groups, which are ill-defined precisely because they are able freely to inter-breed. Subspecies, although they can interbreed, have some biological or genetical impediment in doing so, with the hybrids, even if not sterile mules, less viable or fertile than non-hybrids.

Human races are often so different that they might well have been regarded as separate subspecies, or even species, were it not for the fact that they can and often do interbreed to produce viable hybrids. For this reason 'race' is the appropriate word, with no implication that one is superior to another.

believe what we have to pay for necessities such as fuel, transport, furniture and food. Where once Britain was a country of low pay but correspondingly low cost of living, it is now a country of relatively low pay and a high cost of living. A generous amount of freely disposable income — what is left after paying for life's primary needs — is a commonplace expectation among middle-class Americans, but here is known only to a tiny plutocratic minority.

This is not because of high basic rates of tax, as it once was. Levels of direct taxation here are not so very different from those in America, although personal allowances there are more generous, which means that less income tax is paid by those on low incomes. What makes most ordinary Americans feel wealthier than most ordinary Britons is that they pay less for almost everything.

That was not always the case. When I arrived here 30 years ago, I was astonished to find food so cheap. The arrangements that Britain then had with Commonwealth countries meant that dairy products, meat, sugar and vegetables from places such as the Antipodes and the Caribbean were inexpensive in real terms.

I will not pursue here the sad story of what happened to the price of such comestibles when the Common Market put an end to cheap food from New Zealand and the West Indies or, for that matter what happened to the price of home-grown goods when they came under the rules of the Common Agricultural Policy.

Suffice it to say that the great European rip-off of the consumer is not so alien to the traditional British way of doing things as many overheated Euro-sceptics pretend. For as long as I have known it, the British way of selling things to people — or providing them with services — has been to carve up whatever potential opportunities there were among a handful of powerful interest groups. Forget about a nation of shopkeepers. This is, more than ever, a nation of lazy and self-serving cartels [Gas, water, electric — Ed].

KONDEMNATION KORNER

Pledge to halt BNP presence setting up

THE Scunthorpe branch of the Anti-Nazi League has vowed to stop the British National Party setting up in town.

Key activists from the ANL met this week to decide what stance to take against the BNP, which has threatened to hold a recruitment drive in Scunthorpe.

The ANL has promised to be out in force on Scunthorpe High Street over the weekend, campaigning against the BNP.

As reported in Monday's Evening Telegraph, a leading member of the extreme right wing BNP claimed he was in Scunthorpe last weekend.

John Peacock said he was "greatly encouraged" by support for the party, which is openly racist and supports an end to British immigration policy.

Today local ANL activist Anna Taylor said: "We will be having a stall in the Precinct on Saturday lunchtime, and we will see what the response to that is."

"We think the BNP may be testing the waters in this area, especially as there will be a general election in the next year."

BATTLE FOR FREE SPEECH, LIBERTY AND FREEDOM

Bristol's Evening Post started a fine old controversy when it reported upon the gaoling of an eighteen-man gang of crack dealers. Its front page 'Faces of evil' showed sixteen of the gang. At the same time, Britain's black newspaper, The Voice run the same story 'Crack shame' with a second headline 'Evil gang' in a similar way.

Guess which paper is the target of anti free-speech hate groups? Yes, you've guessed it, the Evening Post. Race 'equality' groups have urged the police to prosecute as has the local radio station. Marc Wadsworth of the Anti Racist Alliance says that the Bristol paper should be prosecuted and The Voice not because of their differing readerships. In other words, one law for immigrants and another law for Britons, with British people being made second class citizens in their own country. The only people who can believe in any equality before the law are 'liberals' and the inmates of mental asylums.

MAN GAOLED

A man has been imprisoned for writing a book about plant cultivation methodology. The book, Tricameral Sensimilla, set out methods of cultivating Tricameral Sensimilla or as it is more commonly known, cannabis. While the book did not advocate anyone break the law and cultivate plants themselves, the writer was prosecuted for incitement in the first case of its kind to suppress a book for over one-hundred years. Evidence that similar books have been produced and are in circulation was deemed inadmissible as evidence.

The government's repressive tactics make it increasingly unclear what it is permissible to write. Any academic study or novel can now be deemed illegal and the writer prosecuted if the subject touches in any way upon a subject that would be illegal if practised by a reader. Murder mystery novels, history books, action adventure stories (James Bond et al) as well as Shakespeare all fall into this category. While it isn't likely that the government will prosecute these authors and publishers (although Shakespeare himself is safely beyond the reach of the law!), what is worrying is the scope the government is giving itself for intimidatory repression. There is clearly a need in Britain for a Freedom of Speech Act to give Britons the same rights of free speech as exist in America. That anyone can go to gaol just for writing a book in a so-called 'democracy' is absolutely outrageous.

TORY BIG BROTHER

Further government attempts to undermine freedom and privacy have been confirmed by the government's Technology Minister, Ian Taylor. The new Internet technology has the government worried that it won't be able to snoop on its own citizens and is desperate to read the electronic mail of its own people. The government intends that every person using encryption should lodge with the government a copy of their private key (used for deciphering messages, called key escrow). The government has failed to explain why it should be privy to the private citizen's business and more importantly for the government, the system is flawed since anyone will be able to double-encrypt — once with a secure key and once with key escrow and so frustrate the government's snooping. At the end of the day, big brother government is going to lose this one.

PHONE TAPS DOUBLE

Showing much the same attitude to freedom, figures released recently show that the number of telephone taps have doubled in five years despite the end of the cold war with the Soviet Union. Some 910 warrants to tap telephones were approved last year compared to 473 five years ago, and many of these taps cover whole organisations! The lack of a legally enforceable constitution to provide limits on the state's illegal activities must be of concern to all freedom-loving people.

INTERNET NEWS

In France, two managers of Internet service providers arrested over the issue of Net pornography have been released and the charges dropped. The two maintain one of hundreds of Network 'hubs' through which, millions of pages of information are passed and archived on. Realistically, the two men can have no idea of what the content of any given page is and cannot be responsible for it. They simply provide the service. The climbdown by the French government is important for freedom of speech since the opponents of free speech will attack the most dubious Net content in order to establish a precedent which can then be used to curtail freedom of speech.

MORE ON THE INTERNET

In America, defenders of free speech have rallied to the defence of the Internet. The Communications Decency Act was intended to outlaw cyber smut and impose massive fines on transgressors. The fear was that the Act was merely the first foot in the door from a government that would like to more closely control media output including that on the Internet.

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) for once backed the side of right and, in an alliance of 57 free speech, civil liberties and other groups that included industry giants Microsoft and Apple Computers as well as CompuServe the Net service provider, made a successful legal challenge to the Act on the grounds that it breached the first amendment guaranteeing freedom of speech.

They also argued that the nature of the Net makes it impossible to police within one country anyway making the legislation futile.

Passing judgement, American judges said: "Just as the strength of the Internet is chaos, so the strength of our liberty depends on the chaos and cacophony of the unfettered speech the First Amendment protects. As the most participatory form of mass speech yet developed, the Internet deserves the highest protection from government intrusion."

This judgement is a crucial and stunning victory for free speech that all nationalists and freedom-lovers everywhere should celebrate.

The efforts of those who would stifle freedom and debate must be resisted. Freedom must prevail over the new book-burners and destroyers, over the intolerance of the haters and the bigots.

The British National Party is the only political party in Britain today with a manifesto commitment to freedom of speech. Long live freedom!

WOT! NO IMMIGRANTS?

The Government is to drop all references to the word 'immigrant' in the new Asylum and Immigration Bill which is to come before Parliament after consultations with Church leaders and race lobbyists. The Government's embrace of political correctness is another example that it is no different to either Labour or the Lib-Dems.

CRE DISCRIMINATION

Race 'equality' chief, Buddhdev Pandya, director of Bedford Council for Racial Equality has been suspended on full pay after all his complaints made complaints of sexual harassment. An enquiry is to be set up to investigate the claims, which are not the first to be made about Pandya as he was also investigated in 1990.

CENSUS FINDINGS

Official statistics based upon the 1991 census reveal that there are in excess of three million 'ethnics' in Britain of which the Indian community was the largest with 840,000, Black-Caribbeans made up 500,000 and Pakistanis 477,000. The figures are almost certainly an underestimate since illegal immigrants reckoned to number between one- and two-million are not likely to have filled in the forms!

NHS USES SCARCE CASH TO BREED THE SICK

A woman with HIV has been given thousands of pounds worth of fertility treatment to give birth to a child with every chance of also being infected. While this nonsense goes on, men with HIV are also to undergo a procedure to allow them to have children. The fact that even if the children are born healthy they will surely be deprived of their father through AIDS before they are very old is apparently not a concern of the NHS — which continually pleads poverty!

ATTACKS ON JEWS DECLINE

A report, Anti-Semitism World Report, published by the Institute for Jewish Policy Research and the American Jewish Committee has found that anti-Semitic incidents in Britain dropped by a quarter last year to a total of just 246.

The report stated that 'there was a fear of rising anti-Semitism following the BNP's council victory in Millwall' but this has proved unfounded with anti-Semitic attacks dropping since that time. Which just goes to show that growing BNP strength and success is positively good for race relations!

Letters

Write to: The Editor, British Nationalist, PO Box 117, Welling, Kent DA16 3DW.

Sir,
Please renew my subscription to BN. I enjoyed the artwork in the May issue and look forward to seeing more of the same in future.

Mr. K. Smith,
Isle of Lewis, Scotland.

Sir,
Two stories juxtaposed on the back page of my local paper which show the utter madness of our present society. We are told in the top item that we must bend over backwards to facilitate the 'needs' of thousands of refugees in our borough who are fleeing 'horrors.' On the same page we read of an elderly man displaying his 'have-a-go' spirit during a bank robbery and featured on Crimewatch viciously beaten by immigrant thugs. No doubt these alien scum have refugee status.

Mr. Osborn,
Ilford, Essex.

Sir,
Please find enclosed a cheque for £9.25 as a renewal of my subscription. A few days ago I was listening to Radio 4 about an old man in his eighties who lives alone and needs a hip replacement operation. He was told that he would have to wait 18 months for one on the NHS, but if he went private he could get one immediately for £6,000. He has paid into the NHS since he was eighteen and this is the only thing he has ever needed. He said he "feels bitter" (Quite naturally).

It makes my blood boil to think that foreigners can come here posing as refugees and be put into free accommodation with free medical treatment and everything else at taxpayers expense, whilst native born Englishmen whose parents, grandparents and great grandparents sweated and laboured to make Britain the prosperous nation it is, are deprived of their basic rights. These foreigners have never contributed one brass farthing to our exchequer, and are economic migrants pure and simple.

Mr. E. Atkinson,
Norfolk.

Sir,
I recently found a copy of your paper on the shelf in my local library. You may be surprised to know that as an ordained Christian Minister, I find myself in complete agreement with many of the views propounded therein. Please find enclosed a £10 note, while we still have one towards your cause and an annual subscription to BN. God bless you all.

Rev. Wakeup, London.

Sir,
Has anyone else noticed that leading up to Euro 96, the fewer Black players that England played, the better the team performed? Bearing in mind: (a) how well Germany regularly played with an all-white side; and (b) how England managed to win the 1966 world cup without any blacks whatsoever, I think there is a lesson there for all of us.

Mr. A. Lecomber,
Ilford, Essex.

BRISTOL BNP — BEST NEW UNIT IN LAST YEAR

The whole region around Bristol had for some time been rather 'fallow' as far as BNP development was concerned, but has been brought to life over the last year by the energetic leadership of Bruce Cowd, who has promoted activities in several outlying areas as well as in Bristol itself.

As support for the BNP has increased in the West, leaflet teams have extended operations to both midweek and the weekend, averaging 1,000 leaflets per session. While there is a lot to be done, like building more teams so as to cover more ground and average thousands per week, enthusiasm has never been so high in Bristol where the party was formed from scratch only last year and which has now progressed to Branch status and intends to field two candidates at the General Election. The speed of development is remarkable and is a model for all new BNP groups everywhere. Full credit has to be given to Branch organiser, Bruce Cowd.

Bristol was the venue of an excellent BNP meeting on the 1st June — the best for many years in the West of England. A crowd of about 40 assembled to hear the first speech in the city for some time by party leader John Tyndall. He was preceded by Dr. Donald Stevens, who will be BNP candidate for Farnborough & Aldershot in the coming general election. Dr. Stevens, who comes from an academic background, spoke on education, damning successive governments for the chaos they had allowed to take root in Britain's schools, and the lamentable standards that were now being produced as a result of the enslavement of the teaching profession to 'political correctness'.

Mr. Tyndall spoke of the need for all people in Britain to take a step away from the minutiae of day-to-day politics, with the seesawing fortunes of the parties in the popularity polls, and look at the 'big picture'. He reviewed the record of all the parties in government since World War II and condemned them for the sorry story of British decline, citing the loss of empire, the destruction of manufacturing industry, the sell-out to Europe and the encouragement of the Third World invasion. Now, however, he said, the hold of the old party system is breaking up as the century neared its end. The BNP, he said, had a tremendous opportunity at the next election to announce itself to the British people as the party of the new century and a new era.

The meeting ended in great enthusiasm and the collection raised £240.

HACKNEY COUNCIL ELECTIONS

The BNP fielded two candidates in one of the worst red-run boroughs in the country last month, which is absolutely teeming with immigrants. The two council vacancies had occurred through resignations and the party quickly decided to contest both seats in Wick ward and De Beauvoir ward.

Victor Dooley stood for the party in De Beauvoir ward and Bill Binding stood in Wick ward.

In the event, the results were disappointing with the party getting 56 votes in Wick and 50 votes in De Beauvoir ward, which worked out to 2.8 per cent and 2.7 per cent respectively.

The campaign passed without incident and both wards were leafleted with very good topical leaflets. Parts of each of the wards were leafleted up to three times and a very small amount of canvassing was done in Wick ward.

The non-white percentage in each of these wards was quite high (although not as high as other parts of Hackney!) At about 40 per cent each. The motives for contesting the seats were: (a) to show that there is no place that the party will not operate in; (b) to raise the party's profile in the area in advance of the next General Election as the party intends to fight Hackney South in which both wards were situated and (c) because of the nature of the area and the fact that the party hadn't contested an election in Hackney since 1983, the party felt correctly that it would be treated as newsworthy and thus aid point (b) and recruitment.

As usual, the campaign saw the usual criminal acts from the left which included no less than three different red leaflets against the party, all against the law urging people not to vote BNP. One even urged people to vote for Labour. The shallowness of the 'revolutionary' left is laughable. These 'revolutionaries' have no better solution than to advise people to vote for Labour and 'Tory' Blair.

While the vote was disappointing, the campaign is an excellent example to branches outside of London that the East End is not a magic wonderland for nationalism. Good votes are only achieved by sinking local roots and campaigning constantly in an area. Prior to the election, no work had been done in Hackney for 13 years. The fact that Tower Hamlets is literally next door to Hackney had no bearing on the outcome.

Bearing in mind then that the campaign was effectively starting from scratch, the vote is still none too good but it does work out to over 5 per cent of the white vote and importantly, the party can take some comfort that it achieved all its primary aims as stated above.

SINKING ROOTS

One of the party's newer groups, Rossendale BNP has caught on very fast that the key to long term success is to sink local roots, and get involved in community politics by taking an active part in the community. Since the beginning of the year, Rossendale BNP has got access to a computer & DTP equipment and now produces its own local newsletters to a high standard.

Rossendale Patriot is newsy, lively and has a touch of humour which is all to the good. It has been widely distributed on a regular basis and it has created an excellent response and generated a large number of enquiries. The growth of support has led to sales of British Nationalist doubling as more people want to find out about the party and support its policies.

The Rossendale Patriot and follow up sales of BN are a key element in the party's plans for contesting the Rossendale and Darwen seat at the next General Election — by building up a hardcore support that can be turned into votes at the time. The professionalism of Rossendale BNP and the dedication of organiser, Andrew Wearden is both a credit to the party and a testament to the inevitability of success in the area. Well done everyone!

GENERAL ELECTION FUND OPENED: TARGET £10,000

The party urgently needs to raise £10,000 in a very short time to meet contingency bills for the running of the party's General Election campaign from the centre. This fund is entirely separate from locally organised election funds, whose purpose will be to raise money to finance local candidates. This new central fund is intended to build up an adequate financial reserve to ensure that the party has an efficient headquarters organisation and is able to meet numerous expenses which will be involved in the central running of its election machine.

Included in the expenses will be the production of the BNP party political broadcast in which a professional camera will be hired (daily hire rates are from £350 plus per day!) to shoot footage to give it more impact and so increase the rate of recruitment and votes generated out of the broadcast; the printing costs of the party's election manifesto; the hire of a whole bank of telephones and the hire of mobile telephones; travel expenses incurred by personnel touring the country and in the transport of election literature to various constituencies; special publicity projects and not least, paying the printer a considerable sum in advance for the printing of the party's election addresses (Two million leaflets don't come cheap!). It is for this purpose the party is targetting to raise £10,000. All donations should be marked 'General Election Fund' and sent to: P0 Box 117, Welling, Kent DA16 3DW

British Imperial Troops Subdue a Continent

EAST MIDLANDS BNP ON THE MOVE

Two regional days of action to promote the party were held in May. On the 25th, the regional team sold British Nationalist in a South Derbyshire town centre before leafleting nearby estates as part of ongoing preparation for the promotion of the BNP in East Midlands constituencies in the run up to the General Election. Edwina Currie is to have BNP opposition in her Derbyshire seat at the next election.

Another day out took place in Scunthorpe when local activists in the town were joined by members from Hull, Northampton and Leicester for a mass leaflet session. The mere presence of East Midlands Regional Organiser, John Peacock has provoked alarm from liberal multi-racialists who are hoping for more immigration so that they too can experience 'inner city problems.' A newspaper report from the area recently has shown that almost half of residents avoid the town centre after dark because it's too dangerous. John Peacock speaking for the BNP pledged the party would help combat crime in the area. Excellent press publicity has been generated in the town where the party hopes to formally announce the setting up of a new group soon. Again, much like the North East, featured elsewhere on this page, Scunthorpe is excellent territory for the party — depressed and with a surprising amount of unwanted immigrants in the area.

YET ANOTHER MOSQUE PLANNED IN SOUTH LONDON

Labour party attempts to ingratiate itself with Asian voters in London took another giant step in early June in Croydon, south London. The controlling Labour group organised a public meeting so that the Muslim Ismaili sect could promote its plans for a 'beautiful' new mosque.

Described by the Croydon Advertiser as 'contentious' plans, they were opposed vigorously by a BNP contingent at the meeting. BNP National Organiser, Richard Edmonds publicly condemned the plans for the new mosque. He said that the result of the Labour party giving the go-ahead for the mosque would be to turn the pleasant British suburb of Addiscombe, Croydon into an Asian ghetto such as Ballam and Tooting. The calm, dignified and restrained speech, which totally wrong footed anti-British & pro-Mosque councillors present, won Mr. Edmonds loud applause. Previously to the meeting, the party had leafleted the whole neighbourhood, calling upon local people to oppose the development. The BNP got widespread publicity in local papers.

NEW UNIT FORMED

After a long absence from the North East, the British National Party is pleased to announce a new group in the area: Tyne & Wear BNP. The group is comprised of some old faces and some new and it is hoped that the group will expand and form many independent groups. The area is mainly white and economically depressed with much potential. Local lefty rag The Journal has already complained that the BNP is active in Northumberland.

What we stand for

- The establishment of a government of national unity that will put an end to nationally divisive party warfare; the return of leadership and statesmanship to British affairs.
- An end to immigration and a start to repatriation.
- British withdrawal from the European Community: trade with Europe where it suits us but no political ties.
- The disbanding of the multi-racial Commonwealth and its replacement by a new Commonwealth of self-governing white states.
- British ownership and control of British industry and resources.
- Protection of British industry by the selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.
- An end to the financial swindle that causes inflation and slump, and its replacement by a sane and fair financial system that will give the people the purchasing power to buy the goods they produce.
- The subordination of the power of the City to the power of Government, and the harnessing of the City to the needs of British industry.
- The regeneration of British farming, with the object of achieving the maximum self-sufficiency in food; also the restoration of the fishing industry by protection of our traditional fishing grounds.
- A healthy environment for a healthy people — the protection of our countryside and an end to the architectural disfigurement of our towns and cities.
- Tougher treatment of criminals, including the return of the death penalty.
- A return to traditional methods of education, with stronger discipline in the classroom and the sacking of 'trendy' teachers.
- An alternative defence strategy: withdrawal from NATO; closure of all foreign military and air bases in Britain; British withdrawal from the war in former Yugoslavia, where no British interest is at stake; the bringing home of British forces from Germany; the strengthening of Britain's defences and a position of armed neutrality.
- An end to overseas aid and the allocation of the money saved to the financing of repatriation and greater help for the needy at home.
- The crushing of the IRA, the termination of the Anglo-Irish agreement and firm support for the loyalist majority in Northern Ireland.
- A return to healthy moral values aimed at strengthening the family and community.
